REPORT OF THE BOARD OF TRUSTEES.

To the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania; the Select and Common Councils of the City of Philadelphia; and the Contributors to "The Northern Home for Friendless Children."

THE TRUSTEES of "THE NORTHERN HOME FOR FRIENDLESS CHILDREN" beg leave to present their Annual Report to those benignant patrons, to whose fostering aid—under the gracious guidance of Him from whom "all holy desires, all good counsels, and all just works do proceed"—the Institution is indebted for the means of accomplishing so much of usefulness in relieving the physical sufferings, and in promoting the mental and moral culture of those now youthful minds and hearts which, in much less than a score of years, will be impressed and act as with a grave sense of duty to society; or else, indifferent to the restraints or interests of a community which has manifested but little care for the proper development of the better features of their natures when in early life, will recklessly prostitute their noblest faculties, ruin themselves and others, and do discredit to the Commonwealth which they might have benefited and adorned.

The importance of these efforts, not only to the hundreds of friendless children whom they are thus instrumental in establishing in life; but, in a purely economical point of view, to the Commonwealth which claims them as her own, can hardly be over-estimated by the most cautious custodian of the treasury of her citizens.

It is to the only period of life when the plastic intellect can be moulded into proper form, that their energies are directed: and they restrict their efforts to the care of those who are free from an imputation of an offence against the laws. Others may, in pursuing a favorite inclination of their humane minds, strive to reform the drunkard's constitution and his habits;—to mollify the callous hearts of miscreants who have been properly subject for a series of years to a rigid prison discipline;—to relieve the decrepit;—to subdue the vagaries of the idiotic or insane. The aim of our Institution is more fundamental, more simple, more natural;—it is preventive, not curative; and it is infinitely more satisfactory in its results than any purely reformatory effort could possibly become. It deals with those of a good physique and an unclouded brain: and it imparts no taint to the character of any child, to say that he or she,—deprived in early life of the unceasing care of those who should, in the regular order of Providence, minister to their wants,—has been an inmate—for a time—of the friendless children's Home.

It is the design of the Trustees to render the Institution in truth, as well as by name, a home. How far they have succeeded, their patrons are invited to decide from personal inspection of the happy little ones who fill the wards.

During the year that has passed, one hundred and ninety-two children have been received into the Home; of whom, over fifty were committed by Judges of different Courts. One hundred and forty-four were indentured to approved farmers, merchants, tradesmen, and mechanics, returned to relatives, or otherwise disposed of; and one hundred and fifty remain at the Home.

The increasing applications for admission, have required an enlargement of the building; and the expenditure of a portion of the last appropriation by the State has enabled the Trustees to afford accommodations for fifty more children; as also an infirmary for the sick; and a play-room for the exercise of the well, when the weather is too warm or inclement for them to be exposed outside of it.

The location of the Institution is a high and healthful one, near to the Girard College for Orphans, and in front of the House of Refuge for derelict youths; so that those Judges who may desire to commit children of unblemished character, sound mind, and healthy frame, from the interior or remote portions of the State, need have no dread that the little ones thus to be forwarded to the Home will be subject to the impure atmosphere of a crowded asylum in the heart of a vast city.

In an establishment where so large a number of those of tender years are congregated, after months or perhaps years of neglect, it is to be expected that there should be a full development of all the diseases incident to childhood; involving, necessarily, a heavy tax upon the time and skill of the attending physicians: yet, but a single loss by death has occurred in a period of two years.

The very onerous and gratuitously furnished services of all the professional gentlemen connected with the Home are worthy of especial notice;—while the religious efforts of the Local Preachers' Association of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and of other denominations of Christians; the fidelity of our Superintendent and Matron, Mr. and Mrs. Levi Hopkins; and the unwearying application of our efficient Teacher, Miss Eliza Young, beyond the six school-hours of each day, should not be overlooked, inasmuch as they have relieved to a great extent the very natural and constant solicitude of the Trustees for the welfare of all those confided to their care.

Among the contributions of the year, occurs the last gift of a firm friend—Mr. EPHRAIM CLARK; whose will bequeaths two thousand dollars to the Home. May he receive the full fruition of that blessed commendation promised unto those who have evinced, in life, a care for "the least" of the Redeemer's "little ones."

The Report of the Board of Managers will be read with lively interest; and the Treasurer's Accounts, appended hereto, are worthy of attention, as indicating the prudent husbanding of such resources as we have. Balance on hand, May 1st, 1859, $523 63.

All which is respectfully submitted.

THOMAS EARP, President.

MACGREGOR J. MITCHESON, Secretary.

OUR ANNIVERSARY.

The Sixth Anniversary of "The Northern Home for Friendless Children," was held at the Church of the Atonement, on Sunday, May 1, 1859, at 8 o'clock, P. M. After appropriate religious exercises, according to the ritual of the Protestant Episcopal Church, the Rev. KINGSTON GODDARD, D. D., Rector of the Parish, premised the presentation of the Annual Report, with an exceedingly beautiful discourse upon "Charity." The Rev. JOHN CHAMBERS, of the Independent Church, and the Rev. WILLIAM T. BRANTLEY, of the Tabernacle Baptist Church, were severally introduced and delivered addresses on behalf of the "Northern Home," which were listened to with profound attention and emotion by the very large congregation assembled on the occasion.

A number of the children from the "Home" then sang a few of the hymns which they had learned while there: and the Rev. Mr. LOUNSBERRY, of St. Jude's Episcopal Church, made an earnest appeal for aid to the Institution.

Our acknowledgments are due to the Rector and Vestry for the use of their church for our Anniversary; and to the clergymen named, for their efforts upon our behalf.

REPORT OF THE BOARD OF MANAGERS.

ON the birth of a child in the Island of Madagascar, the great solicitude of the parents is to know whether the influence of the day is auspicious or malignant. If that particular day of the month is an "unlucky" one in their calendar, it is their superstitious belief that all those born on it will be the subjects and agents of that baneful influence through life. They think that to spare and nurse the unhappy child, would be to cherish, not only a useless, but a dangerous member of society. It would be to nourish a serpent which might sting and destroy those by whom it was reared, and prove fatal to the community at large.

But while we who dwell in this Christian land lament the existence of such a superstition in reference to particular days; while we contemplate with perfect horror the dreadful consequences in which this superstition terminates; and most unfeignedly thank the Giver of every good and perfect gift, that neither we nor our children are exposed to the cruel customs of heathenism, is there not still some room left for very deep and painful reflection? In one respect at least, is there not a real foundation for the almost instinctive belief that the original circumstances with which a child is surrounded, have much, very much indeed, to do with its after destiny? That which is superstition of the grossest kind as to time, among the poor benighted heathen, whose customs have been handed down to them, generation after generation, from their miserable ancestors, is nothing less than the dictates of common sense, the universal testimony of experience and observation, in reference to the PLACE, in which children are first found, and begin to form the first elements of their moral character. The tree will, and must partake somewhat of the soil in which it is planted, and exhibit at maturity, in the structure of its trunk and branches, the influences that were at work upon them when such influences would naturally be exerted to the greatest advantage. The line of direction given to the arrow as it leaves the bow, is impressed upon it throughout its entire course; and we cannot be too careful to have that line of direction precisely in accordance with the object in which we desire the arrow to terminate.

For example: Let the friends and patrons of the Northern Home for Friendless Children accompany us in imagination to some of the localities familiar to our Managers, who go out into the lanes and alleys, the courts within courts, seeking for those children, who in their ignorance and destitution, but for this "seeking," would not be found at all. Look at that STREET. Whatever you have read of the "Seven Dials of London," of the "Wynds" of Glasgow, of the subterranean dens of Liverpool, of the "Five Points" of New York, will also find its counterpart in a good degree in various localities here in Philadelphia—the same filth, the same poverty, the same dilapidation, the same pestilential atmosphere! Look at that GROCERY: that fatal row of barrels on the shelf, and of decanters on the counter; see spread out in that window, in disgusting profusion, the broken food that has been collected from door to door, and sold or exchanged by the various beggars, male and female, old and young, for RUM! Go up that COURT: see how it swarms with population, like a leaf with vermin; ragged, bare-footed children, at every step, without hats, without bonnets, unwashed, uncombed, uncared for either in mind or body, gambling, blaspheming, fighting, crying, and feeding on garbage. Enter that ROOM: the only furniture a stove and a bottle, and in one corner a bundle of straw or rags; no bedstead, no table, not even a chair or a stool ; the accumulation of dirt upon the floor so thick and of such long standing that whether it is wood or brick you cannot tell. Go down into that CELLAR : the water oozing through the crevices of the floor, the walls thick with mildew ; vice is there, poverty is there, disease is there in all its horror ; there is a drunken father, a drunken and abandoned mother ; there is the thief, the gambler, and perchance the murderer ; and there too are LITTLE CHILDREN ! Is that, can that be a proper place for them ? Is not the influence of such a place upon their character equally fatal as the supposed effect of the evil birth-day among the heathen ? Where every word is an oath or a lie, or connected in some way with profanity or impurity, is that the language with which their little tongues should be familiar, with which their minds and hearts should be brought in constant and deadly contact ? Are the influences of that corrupt and degraded street the only influences that are to be thrown around them ? Is their pilgrimage to be the same melancholy pilgrimage of so many hundreds of thousands before them ? Must they too find their way to the grocery, and then to all the various haunts of vice, and then to prison, and then to the almshouse, and at last receive a pauper's burial in Potter's Field ? Somebody must consider these questions. Somebody must answer them. "Society" cannot do it in the aggregate ; it must of course be answered by the individuals who compose society, and hence the origination of the Northern Home, and other Homes for Friendless Children. No wonder that they are so popular, for they appeal to feelings of humanity that are common to all men. No wonder that they are cheerfully sustained, even in the hardest of times, for to what better purpose can gold and silver be applied than to rescue little children from the paths of misery and death ?

To show that the "Northern Home" has been steadily pursuing during the last year the great object for which it was founded, among many examples that might be given, take the following.

1. January 8th, 1858. A little boy, P. D., was found sleeping in a wagon, without home, without food, without any friend who cared enough for him to seek after and to claim him. Had there been no such institution as the Home, is it at all likely that little boy would so soon have been delivered from his exposed and destitute condition, and have been placed where he now is, with a kind family in New Jersey?

2. October 5th, 1858. J. C., a lad eleven years of age, was committed to the care of the Home by Judge Thompson. Who was his father? He was a confirmed inebriate. Where was his mother? She was dead. Why did not his sister support him? She was a poor paper-box maker, and did support him out of her hard-earned wages, until her employment failed. Was the family always in such distress? No, they had seen better days. The same misfortunes that drove the father to intemperance, sent the mother, broken-hearted, to the grave. And where now is her little son? He has found another roof to shelter him; another table at which to feed; another couch on which to repose his weary limbs, and other hands of kindness to minister to his necessities.

3. At the same time a little girl was also committed to the Home by Judge Thompson. What is her name? Only about three years of age, she is too young to tell her name. And where was she found? In the streets, wandering alone on a Saturday night, and crying, until noticed by a gentleman connected with the Telegraph Office. Both the clothing she wore and the condition of her person indicated very cruel and culpable neglect on the part of those who formerly had the charge of her. But who these were, or who were her friends or relatives, it has thus far been impossible to discover. After remaining about six weeks in the Institution, she found a name in that of a gentleman and his wife, who adopted her as their own child.

4. October 9th, 1858. Another little girl was brought to the Home by her sister; and why? Because her father had deserted his family, and her mother was intemperate. Is it not pleasant news to hear that this worse than orphan child has since found a desirable home in a neighboring State?

5. December 14th, 1858. A brother and sister were found begging in the streets. The Manager who visited their mother, found her lodging in a damp cellar, seriously ill, and surrounded by every indication of penury and distress. The girl is provided with a good home; and the boy, too young to be removed, is still in the Institution.

6. April, 1859. An orphan child from the vicinity of Williamsport, in this State, whose heartless mother, coming thence not long since, has now become a pauper and a charge upon our county, and whose elder sister's life is one of poverty and shame, has been committed to the Home. He is a manly boy, of bright intelligence and rural artlessness of manner, and may one day do honor to the Commonwealth which gave him birth.

Most of the children brought to the Home by the Mayor's Police were cases of extreme destitution, exhibiting in several instances the fruits of vice and intemperance on the part of their parents almost inconceivable. What a volume of meaning is in the fact that one of these children shrank from a bed, entirely ignorant of its use, supposing it to be a means of punishment? How much meaning also in the emotion of the little boy, who wept as if his heart would break, on hearing his companions sing,

“My father's a drunkard,
But I'm not to blame.”

For one mother who so far forgets herself and her children as to become intemperate, the fathers who become thus degraded and worthless are numbered by the score.

The history of the Home, in common with that of every humane and criminal institution in the city, is one long record of the evils and miseries consequent upon intemperance. Oh, will the day never dawn? Is there never to be any deliverance from its ravages, or must we henceforth make up our minds tamely to submit to its tyranny as a matter of course?

A pleasant incident in the history of the Home during the last year, occurred in the case of A. D. Received under its care August 8th, 1854, on the 20th of November last he was placed at the Farm School and Orphan's Home at Zelionople, near Pittsburg. During the entire period of his continuance in the Institution, by the uniform docility of his disposition, by his respectful conduct and gentle manners, he has conciliated the good will of all who have seen and known him. Giving good evidence that he has been truly converted to God, and with a fair prospect before him of becoming a minister of Christ, he leaves with the best wishes of the officers and Managers of the Home, for his welfare and usefulness in the new sphere allotted to him. One such boy is no little encouragement to them in their expectations, that the toil and anxiety, the labor and expense, are not bestowed on the inmates of our Institution in vain.

God has indeed been good to us, and compassed us with his favor, as with a shield. Of the numerous cases of illness that have been treated at the Home during the last two years, but one has resulted fatally.

The last year, however, has brought out a new and melancholy feature in the history of the Home. For the first time we have to make record in the Annual Report of the death of two of our original members—Mrs. Henry Stiles and Mrs. Stuart Hibbler. With but a few months' warning in the one case, and a few moments' in the other, they have been called from their benevolent labors on earth to their everlasting rewards in heaven. Not in vain, in the name of Christ, and for the sake of Christ, have they given their sympathy to the poor, neglected children, and fed the hungry, clothed the naked, and provided shelter and home for the friendless and the destitute.

“Christ reckons for them, counts the favor His.”

“Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these, ye have done it unto me.”

It is but a short time at the furthest in which, either as Managers or patrons of this Institution, we can show our love to God by doing our duty to our fellow-men. “The night soon cometh,” let us therefore work while it is the day.
